IN SIGNAL-FLAG JACKETS

The colorful jackets are manufactured by Mighty Mac of Gloucester, Mass., which got its start over 50 years ago by making slickers for the local fishermen. In the midst of the current pleasure-boating boom which now involves 40 million Americans, the company has begun making sailing gear for amateurs that can take rugged wear and weather and still look attractive. These jackets, which are made in water-repellent cotton, cost $17 for men's sizes, $15 for women, and $13 for children, which, for the water-wings crewman, comes as small as a size two.
